AMERICA'S OPPORTUNITY

IN EUROPE'S WAR.

Are we unprepared? Have we no policy? Are we to drift? Is the stupendous opportunity to be forfeited?

Our currency bill has been passed, giving us almost unlimited ability to expand financially. South America has been financed by England and Germany. It is our opportunity to finance our American neighbors and to reap the reward of the patient policy as to Mexico. Are we wise enough to meet the expectation?

The Panama Canal is completed and the west coast of South America is at our doors.

The mercantile marine of the great powers is flocking to our flag, where it ought to stay. Are we wise enough to secure it, to keep it and expand it?

The nations of the world are taking over the home supplies lest there be a shortage. Is our government wise enough to see the need of taking over the cotton crop, the wheat crop, the corn crop, and a number of other staples, at a normally high price, holding them until the world needs them and must have them?

Here there are great national possibilities and policies for which we need the power of the government.

First—To assure such currency facilities as will enable us to buy back our investment securities at the low price at which they are offered.

Second—To assist our banks as to enable us to finance the world's colonial trade which the warring nations are dropping.

Third—To take over the mercantile marine of the world so as to carry our supplies to those who either now or later will so urgently need them.

Fourth—To take over and hold until needed the export staples of the country, especially those temporarily depressed. Shall our farmers sell cotton at half price now, when before the next crop is gathered it will command a war price?

Great lines of peaceful expansion and growth are in this great catastrophe, ours for the taking. Never was there such an opportunity before, and let us hope that it will never come again.

We must act now or forever regret.—Harrington Emerson, in The Engineering Magazine.

THE IMMIGRANT ARMY

After the armies of Europe have been disbanded a new army of migration will invade the American shores. The nations now at war will be impoverished. The costs of the war will fall heavily on the shoulders of the people, and to escape the high taxes and straitened conditions millions more than the million that has come annually to the United States may be expected. What shall be done with them? The agricultural departments of the various states that need farmers to till their soils might now take a leaf from Canada's book. The Canadian government has for some years conducted an efficient advertising campaign to people its agricultural provinces. The states of the Union have now a chance to get the best farmers of Europe. Enterprise and plenty of advertising in foreign languages in all the big American cities will draw thrifty, industrious savers, who know how to cultivate intensively, out upon the farms.—New York Times.

WOMEN AND WAR

The women's peace parade in New York City recently was impressive as a protest against war, but not entirely convincing as an expression of feminine sentiment. It is to be taken as a prophecy of the future woman, perhaps, rather than an expression of woman as she is today and always has been.

One wonders how many of these same women, at a social gathering, would turn their backs on a military man to talk with a male peace enthusiast. How many of them can refrain from boasting, on occasion, their soldier ancestors and relatives, regardless of the cause those soldiers represent? How many of them, at the first threat of war, would refrain from shouting "Our Country, right or wrong!" and sending their own sons to the front? Woman has always loved a uniform. And that has been one of the two most potent encouragements of war. Even while woman has been the chief sufferer, she has sent man to the front with her blessing, and has received him with admiration on his return. There is nobility and self-sacrifice in it, but there is also the primitive savagery that prefers the fighter to the intellectual and moral type.

As the New York World remarks, "If women and religion were to unite against war, there would be no more war! Since religion shows little promise of effective opposition, it seems to be up to the women."

"COMMON PEOPLE WILL DECIDE ON WAR HEREAFTER"

—Senator Burton

"When this fearful conflict is over," Senator Burton predicted in the United States Senate, recently, referring to the European war, "we may safely anticipate that the common people, who must bear the burdens of this strife, will have the decision as to whether nations shall go to war."

"In attributing the conflict to militarism, which would result in 'consequences beyond the wildest conjecture,'" Mr. Burton placed the responsibility upon the "overwhelming ambition of certain sovereigns not yet come to realize that they are not the state."

KING GEORGE AND COUSIN WILHELM

The King of England is the first cousin of both the Kaiser and the Czar of Russia. The mother of the latter, the Empress Dagmar, is a sister of the Dowager Queen Alexandra, while the mother of the German Kaiser was a sister of the late King Edward, the father of King George. But as nearly as can be learned, with the service somewhat hampered by censorship, no arrangements have yet been made for a family reunion this summer.—Ironton Semi-Weekly Register.

DIAGNOSIS OF THE CASE

The announcement is made by one of the extremely belligerent Democratic organs of Waverly, that a certain candidate for nomination in the recent primaries, had a heavy pleurality, having contracted the disease, we suppose, by exposure to too many drafts.—Wilmington Journal-Republican.

OH, NO. HE WASN'T MAD.

According to A. J. Heliker, organizer of the Three Trades Fire Insurance Company, the German porter and the French chef in an Indianapolis hotel were the firmest of friends until two days ago. Then the Teuton offered to teach the Frenchman the German language. "You will need it the next time you visit in Paris," said the porter. The chef, he says, chased the German from the kitchen with a knife cleaver.

"Why, the Frenchman wasn't mad, was he?" asks a friend.

"The Frenchman was in the same fix as the Dutchman's dog," explains Heliker. "I'm not speaking of the Dutchman's dog that you, doubtless, are thinking of. The dog I speak of was taken hunting with his master. The Dutchman returned with an empty game bag."

"Didn't you shoot anything?" asked a friend.

"I shot my dog," said the Dutchman.

"Why, what did you shoot him for?" He wasn't mad, was he?"

"Vell," said the Dutchman, "he wasn't so dam pleased."—Louisville Times.

JUDGE FOR YOURSELF

Which Is Better—Try An Experiment or Profit by a Maysville Citizen's Experience.

Something new is an experiment. Must be proved to be as represented. The statement of a manufacturer is not convincing proof of merit. But the endorsement of friends is. Now supposing you had a bad back, A lame, weak, or aching one, Would you experiment on it? You will read of many so-called cures.

Endorsed by strangers from faraway places. It's different when the endorsement comes from home.

Easy to prove local testimony. Read this Maysville case: M. C. Chisholm, 317 E. Second St., Maysville, Ky., says: "There was a time when my kidneys were badly disordered and I was annoyed by many symptoms of kidney complaint. Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Wood & Son's Drug Store, removed the trouble and my good health since then is evidence of their merit. I have seen many other cases where Doan's Kidney Pills have proven their worth. My former endorsement of this remedy still holds good." Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Chisholm had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

WET AND DRY TERRITORY.

In view of the wet and dry vote to be held in November, the following facts will be of interest:

Nine states which before January 1, 1913, enacted prohibition laws were: Kansas, Maine, Mississippi, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Tennessee, West Virginia and Georgia. They have a population of nearly 15,000,000.

There are 17 states in which 50 per cent of the population live in so-called no-license territory. These are Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Vermont and Virginia.

There are 13 states in which 25 per cent of the population live in no-license territory, namely: California, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Ohio, Oregon, Utah, Washington, Wisconsin and Wyoming. At different times 23 states have adopted the policy of prohibition. All but nine, for one reason or another, have abandoned it for local option or control by license. Of the nine dry states the majority have been dry but a few years and one, West Virginia, went dry on July 1st. Statewide prohibition campaigns are on this fall in Virginia, Ohio, California, Washington and Oregon.

CUT SILAGE CORN AT THE RIGHT TIME.

There is a tendency among many farmers to cut corn for silage before the corn is sufficiently mature. Corn is at its best for silage when the kernels are well denting and the upper leaves of the stalk are still green. Sometimes, on account of drought, most of the lower leaves will dry before the grains have denting. In this case it is much better to allow the kernels to mature sufficiently than to cut the corn too soon. It is necessary that the silage be moist enough to pack well in the silo, and if the corn stalks and leaves are rather dry when the kernels are properly matured for silage making, the corn should be wet before it is run through the silage cutter. It is true the silage may be more palatable if the corn is cut while the stalks and leaves are green, but the feeding value of the silage may be increased from 10 to 20 per cent by allowing the corn to stand in the field one week.

STORY OF A JUG.

On Friday night of last week a colored man broke into the Dover depot, appropriating one gallon of whisky. After leaving the depot the colored man decided that it was easier riding than walking and stole Section Foreman Alva Love's three-wheel car, riding it almost to Foster where he abandoned it. The colored man evidently thought he was safe from pursuit, as he continued down the track, taking an occasional swig out of the whisky jug. O. O. Detective Warden of Covington, was notified of the robbery and boarded an East-bound freight in search of the fugitive, and as the train was passing between New Richmond and California, the colored man was found, plodding down the middle of the track, toward Silver Grove, and was taken into custody.

WE'LL HAVE TO WEAR WHITE SOCKS

If the European war does not cease within a few weeks and there seems little prospect that it will, everybody will have to wear white stockings.

Aniline, the chemical base of all dyes comes from Germany. It is said that there is no aniline produced in this country. Manufacturers of dyed goods have practically exhausted the supply in this country.

All drug stores are being visited by agents for the purpose of buying up the entire supply. It is stated that there is sufficient dye on hand to last about two months.

Soon it is expected that everybody will be wearing white hose on all occasions and the old black stand-by will be given a temporary release.
